Abstract

The purpose of this study was to know the correlation between Social Intelligence and Conflict Strategies of Student in Middle level of Seminary St. Vincentius A Paulo Garum Blitar. Social Intelligence means a set of skill giving us probability to be effective in managing social interaction. Conflict strategies in this research are consisted of: turtle style, shark style, teddy bear style, fox style and owl style. The sampling of research was all Seminary student of Garum Blitar. The seminary students were 109 students which all of them are men from age 14-21 years old. The sampling technique used was saturated sampling. Data was collected using two questioners, Social Intelligence scale consisting of 47 item, and Conflict Strategies Scale adapted from David W. Johson (1975). Data was analyzed using Coefficient Contingency (C) with the level of signification 5%, SPPS version 16.0 for windows. The result shows that index KK = 0,479, p = 0,009. It indicates that there is correlation between Social Intelligence and Conflict Strategies. Thus it can be said that social intelligence has contribution to determine the conflict strategies used by somebody.
