Abstract

Many wife claiming divorce are indicator that they have no marital satisfaction. It is because of the lack of fulfillment marital satisfaction aspects, which consist of material, sexual, and psychological aspect. This research used a qualitative approach with intrinsic case study. Interview was used to collect data from three subjects. All subjects are the wives claiming divorce in Pengadilan Agama Surabaya while they are on still early adult age (18-40 years old). The results of this study show that fulfillment aspects of marital satisfaction for wife claiming divorce were unique. The first and the second subject don't have satisfaction for material, sexual, and psychological aspects, so they don't have marital satisfaction, whereas the third subject has satisfaction in all aspects (material, sexual, and psychological aspects), so she has marital satisfaction. Those three aspects are related and mutually affected each other, thus if one of those aspects not fulfilled, it can generates unsatisfaction which bring to the divorce.
