Abstract

The rise of China as the new world economic is interesting. The shift of hegemony is usually marked by war. The shift of hegemonic power also raises contextual question with its unique. This paper aims to elaborate the pushing strategy of rising Chinese’s economics. Several reasons behind China’s rise are the sovereign wealth fund foreign policy, state-owned enterprises in strategic sectors, and the improvement of military force. However, China’s rising is not without obstacles. Some problems arises are energy issues, environment, territorial dispute, and economic gap. In the end, the writer attempts to elaborate the relevancy of China’s strategy and some obstacles it faced to the development of Indonesia’s economy.
